During the downward passage of the steamboat Superior, day before yesterday a difficulty occurred between a deck-passenger, whose name is unknown, and one of the crew named Kountz, who had turned a club by the former, the ball passing entirely through his neck, and inflicting a wound from which it is thought he can never recover. The passenger was committed to jail. Mr. Ghent, who held themselves responsible when the condition of Kountz will permit it.

STABBING AFFRAY ON LIBERTY-STREET.—A difficulty occurred of two or three ago, on Liberty-street, between Main and Sycamore, which was night resorted to by members of the parties. Richard Wisemiller made an effort to collect some money due him from Lewis Hake, when both parties, we believe were armed with knives. Hake drew his knife, stabbed his antagonist several times in different parts of the body. Hake was arrested and taken before Judge Lowe yesterday morning, who committed him to jail, in default of bail in the sum of $1,000, to await an examination, which will take place before the Police Court as soon as the fate of Wisemiller has been determined.

SERIOUS MISTAKE OF A DRUGGIST.—LAURENCE SOLD IN LIQUOR OF BRANDY.—Last Friday Mr. Charles E. James, residing at No. 33 George-street, who has been ill for some time, saw the appearance of the liquor, and without examining it, mixed a drink with sugar and water, swallowed it, and soon after fell in a comatose state, from which no effort could revive him. He died last night. It was discovered that the victim of the druggist's stupidity had now been recovered as being deemed out of danger.

EXTRAORDINARY SUICIDE.—A MAN FOUND DEAD IN QUININE.—About three o'clock on Sunday afternoon the body of a man named Adam Heg was found suspended to a tree in Riddle family grave-yard, near Camp Washington. He had been dead several days and was in the condition for several days and was partially decomposed.

Gordon Carey was immediately informed of the discovery, and he held a coroner's inquest, which developed the following facts: The deceased resided at No. 154 Everett street, with a wife and four children. His domestic relations were not at all agreeable to him; he was very intemperate, and of late has not only neglected, but abandoned his family.

On Friday morning he repaired to the place where he worked and suspended himself by a hitch-rod. When found on arm was found clasped around the tree and one knee was resting on the ground, while his head was inclined backward and to the left, the face looking upward. The motion of the limbs ceased and he died without a word in accordance with the circumstantial evidence.

BRUTAL AND UNPROMPTED ABUSE UPON WOMAN.—A woman named Ellen Coleman went to the office of the Mayor, yesterday afternoon, in a troubled condition, and met Thomas Lloyd met her near the Michigan Hotel, where she was surrounded by a loaded-whip, beat, kicked, and bruised her in the most cruel and barbarous manner.

A portion of her clothing was literally torn to shreds; the skirt of a black silk dress which she wore was ripped from the waist to the knees; her arms and legs were severely cut, as if struck with a heavy blunt instrument; her neck, bosom and hands were lacerated; her face and limbs, arms, and body bruised and so much that she walked with great difficulty, her lips were swollen, her eyes bloodshot, and her entire appearance gave evidence of treatment like that recorded above.

The provocation for this inhuman assault from what we were able to learn, consisted in the fact that she had loved the man, a horse him an illegitimate child, whom she bore in Heaven. Mrs. Coleman is a widow, and resides on Seventh-street between Broadway and Sycamore, and upon the met Lloyd enjoyed an excellent reputation. She had been married to him for many years by her needle, and when met by her former lover, yesterday afternoon, was search of employment. A warrant was issued for the arrest of the person who behaved so cruelly, and was earnestly hoped to be punished in a manner adequate to the crime.

The thermometer over one hundred degrees in the shade—over twenty persons sun-struck yesterday—horses prostrated in the street—The Reign of Typhoid on Earth.

For some days past Cincinnati has been suffering from an intense and oppressive heat rarely experienced outside of the Equatorial region, the thermometer ranging from 97 to 104 degrees, the sun being so bright that humanity barely able to escape suffocation. The nights have been as hot as the days, and poor roasted mortals who retired to their couches even at a late hour, lay there gasping like extraneous creatures removed from the aqueous element. Rest or sleep was out of the question, and even bath-rooms were viewed in vain. The water was hot and grew hotter as burning bodies were plunged there.

The grey dawn came, and the reddening East, and again the crimson sun, and discovered the fevered beings exhausted and gasping for breath, tossing upon their anxious, fiery couches.

A hurried toilette, with strange sounds like oaths, and an appeal to ices, and cobblers, and juleps, and a total emancipation from every extraneous garment—all for the great and sole purpose of becoming cool; visions of icebergs and polar seas meanwhile crossing the heated fancy like glorious unrealities.

Business not to be thought of, but voted a large hour—great as he that killed the fair Adonis in the wood—and every thing but frigidity not only undesirable, but hateful in the extreme. In the streets, the houses, the rooms, the furniture, the people were hot. The atmosphere danced with torridity; a million suns seemed blazing in the sky; a great furnace, raging in the air; everywhere was the heat, and heat, and everywhere were victims of its ire.

So our citizens have felt and suffered for the last week, until they have become resigned to the inevitable. The great poets, Æneas and Dante did by way of improvement in temperature. They have grown salamanders, and desirous of seeing the thermometer go up in the balloon if it likes, and that it can never come down again.

Yesterday was in the expressive language of a Grecian bard—yet untranslatable—a "regular snorter"—it was weather in the superlative degree of the heat. The day was a hot Calvanistic fire and brassstone kind, only vastly hotter and more disagreeable. The mercury went out of sight, and persons succeeded the watch-towers and Cathedral spires to determine the height of the heat.

But, happily, however, a success crowning their heroic efforts.

Certain literalists and obsolete materialists, who beneath the heavy sunbeams, a little above 100°, but no one with blood in his veins or marrow in his bones believed them. How could they when they were like victims at the auto da fe, surrounded on all sides by the flames of the sun, and for enervation through the content that follows oblivion and death.

To ascend or descend, as the case may be, to the furthest limit of the thermometer was Monday. At the hour of sunrise, all the air was still and heavy, and the atmosphere growing like a furnace. Respiration was difficult, and a cool spot the dream of a madman. The sun, however, was not so kind, but would drop each moment; pedestrians bore large umbrellas, and hugged the little shadows of the sidewalk as if death were beyond them.

Accidents from the heat reached us every minute, as it seemed. Horses fell exhausted, dying and dead on the Landing and at the railway depots. Men grew faint and sick and fell beneath the heavy sunbeams, speeding like fatal arrows to the earth. The summer grew delicious and leagued with the sting of terrors to do his work, and yet but few perished, though we wonder hundreds did at the thought.

The sun-strokes with which we were made acquainted numbered seventeen or eighteen, though doubtless there were many more that did not get out.

James Murtel, an employee of a lumber firm was sun-struck on Third-street, near the Gas Works, about noon, and at two o'clock was reported dying.

John Mackinley, a butcher, fell from his wagon near the Brighton House, and was in a dangerous condition when last heard from.

A German, name unknown, left Moore's Garden, corner of Main and Liberty-street, and was struck free of lager-beer and fell in the street, before he had walked a square.

He died last evening, at his residence, on Buckeye-street.

Charles H. Buckeye, of Mayville, Ky. sank on the sidewalk, near the Little Miami Railroad Depot, about eleven o'clock in the morning.

He was carried into an adjacent coffee-house, and was still there a late hour last night.

Several railroad men, employed by the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad Depot; but recovered on application of the proper authorities.

Patrick Coyne, a laborer, was fatally sun-struck at noon, while digging a new cellar on Central-avenue, near York. He was carried to his residence, and expired about three o'clock last evening.

A boy, while driving a sand-cart, was the recipient of a coup de soleil, and fell at the corner of Pearl and Race-streets, receiving severe contusion on the head. He was sufficiently recovered in an hour after the accident to resume his labors.

Mrs. Freney, on Sixth-street, near Stone; Aaron Mumford, on the Observatory-road; and John O'Connell, on the corner of Third and Erie-streets, were all sun-struck; but the most of them, so far as we can learn, are likely to recover.

A clerk in Binzel & Co.'s grocery, on Main-street, fell at the corner of Hunt and Broadway, and last evening was in a critical condition.

We heard of three or four more cases, but could learn no particulars. Enough, however, to show that the present drought of the day of August which will long be remembered as one of the hottest of the terrible summer days of the Queen City.

THE RECENT WALNUT-STREET DEVALUATION.—A telegram was received in this city yesterday, to the effect that Charles McDougall, the Walnut-street defaulter, had left Detroit on his way to the West, and was pursued by the police of that city. It was rumored yesterday that Mr. West, the senior member of the firm, has been arrested charged with complicity in the affair, but whether this is true or not is not known.

Mrs. McDougall, the wife of the defaulter, has not left the city, as has been erroneously stated by several of the city papers, but is still here.

GARIBOLDI AND HIS PURPOSE.—A Florence correspondent of the Providence (R. I.) Journal says:

Gen. Garibaldi is steadily doing his work. With characteristic energy he is going straight forward to the accomplishment of the ends which he has in view. He has just concluded a bargain with Col. Caviglioglio, of 100,000 of the best arms which are produced by that manufacturer. To his resources of all sorts there are constantly coming in thousands of volunteers, and he has already made just made him a present of 600 stand of arms, and others are giving in a similar proportion.

A SLAVE FALLS IN LOVE AND CHANGES HIS MINDS.—The man-servant of a New Orleans lady, rejoicing for the summer at St. Paul Mine, has been spirited away by a free girl, and is now in the hands of the authorities. Resisting all other temptations to freedom he slipped his white mistress for one of most dusky complexion, and made off with her.

It is said "the hare is one of the most timid animals, yet it always dies game." "Who should'st it, when it is made game of?"

FIDELITY COURT.

MOTION TO APPOINT A GUARDIAN was heard for the appointment of a guardian to take charge of the estate of James Walker, late of Millicent, deceased. The guardian named by the court was Walker's wife, but she was unable to take charge of the estate because of her impaired condition of his intellect.

Judge Tilden, who was subpoenaed to attend and preside over the hearing, said that for many years, Walker, who was a well-to-do man, had been in the habit of spending his own property, by reason of his impaired condition of his intellect.

Judge Tilden, who was subpoenaed to attend and preside over the hearing, said that for many years, Walker, who was a well-to-do man, had been in the habit of spending his own property, by reason of his impaired condition of his intellect.

Judge Tilden being asked by Mr. Tilden to state what he knew in reference to this gentleman to manage the estate, he represented to be a man of distinguished qualifications of business; he became troubled with difficulties, which eventuated in his wife for a divorce, and he was a hermit, and delivering himself up of intoxicating drinks, his business gradually diminished. He was of opinion that a guardian should be appointed to take charge of his affairs (Judge T.) advised against it, having as to his property, but at this time he said Mr. Walker was not capable of managing his business. His memory, apprehension and judgment were very much impaired, and there was a giving out of the active faculties for the purpose of the court, the result of intemperance, but they insisted that he was not a man.

After hearing the evidence of the claimant and several other witnesses, it was of opinion that at least a temporary appointment of a guardian should be made and the name of Mr. J. F. Irving was suggested.

The real estate of Mr. Walker, at this city from Massachusetts, together with a capital of twelve and a half to commence his fortune, (as one stated) is said to be worth about $100,000, with insurances to the amount of $20,000.

MAIL TO ANNEWER A CHARGE OF MURDER. James Newland gave bail for James Eugene Lavender and others, who were charged with the murder of a second degree; Benj. Higdon and Kemper being the bondsmen.

BEFORE JUDGE STIEREN (IN CHARGE) PENITENTIARY AND FIFTH-STREET MARKET AND FIFTH-STREET MARKET-space Railroad Company.—It appeared that Griffey, one of the plaintiffs, is charged to answer a charge of murder on or about East Pearl-street, between Ludlow and who is a party to this that he has ordered the discontinuance of the injunction heretofore granted to construct their railway with tracks through and along Congress Pearl-street, between Ludlow and who is dissolved.

RIVER NEWS.

The Ohio opposite this port very little since our Sunday's issue, but we are informed that the water is rising to the Water-works report, less than in the channel between here and Le. Pittsburgh there was a rise from the river, and the water was reported a depth of that point.

Yesterday was intensely hot, the mercury ran up and down the shade, the atmosphere was sultry, and the business was dull on the landing as well as on the wharves.

Freshets were offered very sparingly, and the occurrence of such freshets were about the same as last week; no sequences having occurred since then.

The following are the incomplete part as obtained:

CLERK OF THE COURT OF APPEALS.

Combs. McCLARY. COLONEL.

Bolling. GUTHRIE.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL.

Tibbatts. Thomas. SHERRIFF.

Stricker. Reardon. MARSHAL.

Jackson. Bennett. WARD.
